Data Exchange, Inc. Named "Texas Star" Provider of TPV Services

Austin, Texas, August 18, 2004 – Regulatory Compliance Services has named Data Exchange, Inc. a "Texas Star" provider of independent third party verification (TPV) services. The announcement, by Patricia Dolese, founder of the Austin, Texas based consulting firm, was made upon completion of a compliance review conducted by the firm of Data Exchange, Inc.

Data Exchange, Inc., based in Tulsa, Oklahoma has been providing independent third party verification services to both telecommunications and electric providers for seven years. These providers typically secure the services of a third party verification company to meet regulatory and quality control standards. Deemer Stacy, CEO of Data Exchange, gladly accepted the "Texas Star" designation stating that "it is an outward symbol of our continued commitment to providing quality third party verification services."

"It is important for telecommunications and electric providers to obtain proper customer authorization and verification of a sale," said Ms. Dolese. "Further, unlike Data Exchange, not all service providers offer the same high quality service that ensures client compliance with the various regulatory requirements." Oftentimes, clients secure the use of a third party verification company without thoroughly ensuring that the verification vendor is capable of complying with regulatory requirements. As a result, these clients remain exposed to regulatory risk.

Copies of the full compliance report may be obtained, via email, from Regulatory Compliance Services at rsc@your-rcs.com. For more information on the vendor reviews, and the "Texas Star" designation, please visit our website at: <http://www.your-rcs.com/vendors.htm> or contact us directly.

Regulatory Compliance Services was formed in 2002 by Patricia Dolese, a former employee of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, to provide expert compliance consulting services to telecommunications and electric providers operating in Texas.
